Administrator's Notice.

Notice is hereby given that letters of administration on the estate of J. T. Hart, deceased, have been granted me by the Probate Court of Chariton County, bearing date May 7, 1907. All persons having claims against said estate are required to exhibit them for allowance within one year from the date of said letters, or they may be precluded from having any benefit out of said estate. If such claims are not presented within two years they shall be forever barred.
M. A. HART, Administrator.

Writer Tells of the Convention of the Christian Police Association in 1883.

I was present at the great convention of policemen held at Oxford hall at Leeds, England, says a writer in the Christian Intelligencer. It was the annual conference of the International Christian Police association, established in 1883, which has now branches in connection with most of the police forces of the United Kingdom as well as in the colonies and dependencies, and some in the United States. Its object is the promotion of the temporal and spiritual welfare of all policemen and their families by providing educational classes, social gatherings and meetings for the study of God's Word, and the culture of the spiritual life, and also the encouraging of total abstinence and purity of life. It also establishes orphanages and hospitals and actually does mission work among the heathen.

I was especially impressed with the remarks of Sergt. Wheeler of the Strand police station, London, who said: "A policeman's daily experience is not conducive to high standards of moral living. They are brought so constantly in contact with vice and crime, and they see so much of the artificiality and sham of human nature, that many of them are apt to lose all confidence in purity and truth. But a policeman can do more than lock a man up. He can arrest a man in his sins. Some time ago I saw a man trying to get into a house in the early morning—not his own house. He was too drunk to know the difference, and I took him to the lockup, but on the way I spoke to him about the folly of drink, and in his cell I knelt with him and prayed that God might give him power over his evil habits. When that man came out he hunted me up and told me that I had given him a new lease of life and that he had resolved never to touch liquor any more and to be an upright man. I lately visited him in his home, and his wife told me that the home which used to be a little corner of perdition because of the drunken habits of the husband was now a corner of paradise."

KING OSCAR A GENIAL HOST

Swedish Monarch "Kids" a Newspaper Man Who Boards His Yacht for an Interview.

Although the people of Norway have decided to cut away from Sweden, they have little against King Oscar as a democratic individual. He is a tall, erect, handsome old gentleman, courtly and kind in manner, and is, perhaps the most approachable monarch. Several years ago, while aboard his yacht Drott in northern waters, a party on a passing steamer asked permission to go aboard, says a writer in Success Magazine. It was courteously granted.

King Oscar, in greeting his visitors, said: "I fear I cannot show you such a yacht as you have shown me this morning, but she is comfortable enough for an old gentleman, and I have spent 22 happy summers on her."

To a journalist in the party the king granted a few minutes' conversation, and his first question, in perfect English, was: "You have a great many of my countrymen in your northwest territory. What sort of citizens do they make?"

"The best we have, your majesty."

Smiling, and thinking for a few moments, he remarked: "Is that the truth, or is it a newspaper man's diplomatic answer?"

Not long ago King Oscar was sitting in the smoking-room of a Wiesbaden hotel, where a group of gentlemen were discussing the question of the hour—strikes, socialism, communism, the revolutionary tendencies of the time, etc. One of the party, expatiating upon his pet theories with considerable vehemence, wound up with the remark: "The days of monarchies are numbered."

King Oscar looked up and smiled.

"Evidently you don't agree with me," resumed the speaker; "but can you give me any good reason for thinking otherwise?"

"Only one—I am the King of Sweden," he replied.

Where is Your Hair?

In your comb? Why so? Is not the head a much better place for it? Better keep what is left where it belongs! Ayer's Hair Vigor, new improved formula, quickly stops falling hair. There is not a particle of doubt about it. We speak very positively about this, for we know.

Does not change the color of the hair.

Formula with each bottle. Show it to your doctor. Ask him about it, then do as he says.

Indeed, the one great leading feature of our new Hair Vigor may well be said to be this—it stops falling hair. Then it goes one step further—it aids nature in restoring the hair and scalp to a healthy condition. Ask for "the new kind."

The Bee thinks Rothville should have a larger and better school building and a high school. Good ideas, both.

The town board of Triplett has re-appointed B. B. Adams as marshal. Mr. Adams makes a good officer and discharges his official duties without fear or favor.

Mrs. Ed Silvers of near Triplett died Tuesday, May 7, 1907, after an illness of only a few days. She was 42 years old. Her remains were taken to Streator, Ill., for interment.

A Chillicothe society girl hired a carriage and took her beau riding. When the ride was over she sent the horse and buggy to the livery-stable in care of the young man, but before going to the stable he went after another girl and took her riding.—Macon Republican.

H. C. Crawford has the material on the ground for a new store-building at Whitham, the new town four miles north of Triplett. Boone Green of Dean Lake will also open a blacksmith shop at Whitham, while work on the new 16-room hotel is being pushed as rapidly as possible.

George Accola of Marine, Ill., the father of J. B. Accola who is engaged in the hardware business at Mendon, is dead. The deceased was born in Switzerland November 8, 1828, but had resided in this country for the past 61 years. His wife, three sons and two daughters survive him.

Thursday evening the breaking of glass and sounds of battle in a second-story room in Marceline attracted attention. A number of men and boys swarmed out of a back entrance and a beer bottle from an upper window crashed into a plate-glass window. A crowd gathered, but no one cared to investigate. Finally some one ventured upstairs and found the complete wreck of a "poker room." Otis Dorrell and "Granny" Gates had been indulging in a social game and had quarrelled and fought with beer bottles. Both were arrested.

If the innocent purchaser law were repealed it would suddenly educate a lot of men who now profess ignorance.

This Feature and Flying Turtles Give the Country Fame Which No Other Has Acquired.

In Algeria, where they have flying turtles, they have likewise a mine of sauerkraut which the natives are working and eating with such enthusiasm that it is believed they will be speaking with a German accent presently; in which case the interest of the kaiser in the northern tier of African states will be so considerable before the year is out that we may expect what are called representations to the French government, says the Brooklyn Eagle.

We keep on discovering things as we grow older, but we have never discovered, outside of Algeria, a way to develop the delicious confection known as sauerkraut without putting it to decay in barrels. Now that cabbage has developed a way of growing itself in the dark, fermenting unbeknownst and packing itself for use, the St. Louis sauerkraut trust may well view with alarm and fly to congress to get its infant industry protected. Indeed, Algeria herself may have to take measures. If not, she will invite a Teutonic invasion in comparison to which the encroachments in Manchuria will be as Sunday excursions out of Philadelphia. Seated beside a cave of sauerkraut with fragrant herrings, pigs feet, bologna sisside, leberwurst, onions, liquefied Limburger cheese and pumpernickel spread over the earth at his feet, and a keg of beer within reach, Hansel would need only Gretel singing beside him in the wilderness, for wilderness were paradise enough. Why would Hansel continue to grind a living out of the colder soil of Germany when balmy Algeria beckoned? If Algeria fails to take measures we shall hear the warble of saengerbunds and gemischterchor in Philippeopolis and Gerryville, shall observe the consumption of raw hams under the very nose of Islam, and discover announcements of Milwaukee's famous soothing sirup in Layhouat and Twat. Along of this finding of the sauerkraut mine changes in political geography may be impending.

CLAIM LOUIS XVII. DESCENT

Party in France with Sincere But Not Numerous Adherents—Queen Known as Madeleine.

On the occasion of the anniversary of the death of Marie Antoinette mass was said in the humble but ancient church of St. Denis at La Chapelle, France, in the presence the "king and queen of France and the dauphin."

The royal personages were a quiet looking gentleman apparently about 40 years of age, a lady, very simply dressed, and a little boy with long fair curls, whom she held by the hand. A small number of elderly ladies and gentlemen received their majesties and bowed low when they alighted from a motor car.

The king of France in question is the descendant of Naundorff, who alleged that he was Louis XVII., son of Louis XVI., having been saved from the Temple prison, and not, as most historians believe, done to death in boyhood, another child having been substituted for the real dauphin. The present king of France de jure is in deadly earnest about his divine right to the throne, and his followers, who style themselves the only real legitimist party in France, are, though not very numerous, equally sincere and devoted to the cause. It is, however, rather a platonic devotion, and the party has yet made no apparent attempt to bring about a revolution in order to set the king upon his rightful throne. After the religious service the congregation, numbering about a dozen persons, bent knees and kissed hands while bowing low to the queen and the dauphin. The king's name is Jean, and he is therefore John III. of France. The queen is styled usually Princess Madeleine, and the boy Prince Henry of Bourbon, dauphin of France.

A Kansas editor tells the following on a brother editor: "One day his compositor came to him and said there was a tramp at the door who said he had had nothing to eat for six days. 'Fetch him in,' said the editor, 'if we can find out how he does it we can run the paper for another week.'"

It will not be difficult to determine what two or three misguided citizens of Keytesville the following gem of truth fits so well: "A man is poor when he has lost the confidence of his friends; when people who are next to him do not believe in him; when his character is honeycombed by deceit and punctured by dishonesty. He is poor when he makes money at the expense of his character; when principle does not stand out clear and supreme in his idea."

Daniel Gooch of eight miles southeast of Salisbury celebrated his 92nd birthday Friday, May 3. Descendants consisting of children, grandchildren, great-grandchildren, nieces and nephews and several grand-nieces and nephews to the number of about 40 were present to join in the joys of the day. A big dinner was served and was relished in the highest degree.

The editor of the COURIER found Attorney Fred Lamb of Salisbury hard at work on some legal document at Crawley & West's law-office in Keytesville Friday night. He sat beneath one of the new acetylene gas lights and we asked him how he liked it. He promptly replied that it was better than an electric light. There is no doubt but what the acetylene gas is fine for business-houses and residences, and is a particularly desirable light to read, write or sew by. Fred, however, only tried it for reading and writing and not for sewing purposes.
